A well-organized project repo should allow visitors to see everything they want and none of what they don't want as effortlessly as possible. Follow the example below and you'll never be wrong: